

A New Year, a Renewed Commitment

Western Nebraska awakened to a White New Year's Day. About three inches of snow had fallen overnight, and the trees and fields were covered with the most beautiful layer of blinding white snow.

Set against the bright blue sky, the picture was truly breathtaking.

A fresh new year, awaiting a fresh new start. The machinery at the mill was quiet on New Year's Day, but Robert and I were there working, getting ready to begin again on January 2, 2014. This year, as every year, we at Brown Sheep Company are committed to bringing you the best yarn we can make and the best customer service we can provide. Truly, we are passionate about what we do.

This year, we will have several blog posts that focus on the values that are important to us. Join us here and learn the heart of Brown Sheep Company.
